It gives me immense pleasure to witness the college progressing to glory in leaps and bounds. Even a casual perusal of the college's activities will reveal the zest and vigour with which the staff and students of the college are working hand in glove to elevate the college to phenomenal heights. It was an eventful year with the government approving the M.A. Economics programme in the aided stream, along with B.Sc. Psychology in the self financing stream. M.Com. Marketing has already started in the self financing stream. The curricular and extracurricular activities of the college vied for excellence all through.

The college had applied for autonomous status and the inspection team visited the college last year. Though the college wasn't accorded autonomous status, it is still in consideration this year.

On the whole, the college continued its march to glory. The students of the college exhibited commendable restraint in its political activism that translated into a reduced number of strikes, thereby ensuring a conducive atmosphere for the burgeoning of academic interests. The increased number of students who qualified the NET examination from various departments like Commerce and English is ample proof of this excellence.

The year was wound up with an impressive array of intellectual and cultural events to mark the Golden Jubilee Celebrations of MES at the college. Details of programmes have been included in this document. Notable dignitaries like Medha Patkar, Meena Kandasamy and justice Rajinder Sachar visited the eco-friendly college campus on various occasions.

We bask today in the glow of a year of heartening accomplishments only to spring forward more energetically into the resplendence of the future. I take this opportunity to appreciate the support of all who made this possible and solicit such assistance in the future too.
